MIKE BOLHUIS:
THE FLAMINGO PROJECT
PART 10

TAKING FLIGHT!
Another Human Intervention to Overcome!

As the project is nearing completion, reports of solitary young Flamingos being spotted and rescued all over the country and in our neighbouring countries, are flooding in. We are very pleased to report that these youngsters are not from the ones that we rescued and released, as every individual bird was marked with its own unique ring. As part of the natural life cycle of flamingos, the youngsters need to follow the flock when the adults decide to migrate due to changes in weather conditions, or food scarcity. It is highly likely that young flamingos found solitary in certain areas, are the ones that were not fit enough to make the migration. Birds in general are very susceptible to weather and the cold weather could cause a drop in body condition, which makes the migration virtually impossible.

We would like to thank SANCOB for assisting us with the cleaning of the birds, it contributed greatly to the release of another 200 Flamingos this week.

We do have a great concern with regards to the powerline situation. The powerlines in question, which are currently causing havoc within the flight path of the Flamingos, belong to Transnet. It is critical that Transnet comes on board to do their bit with regards to increasing the to any avian species (flamingos, cranes, vultures, etc.), when the sun is situated directly behind the powerline as the birds fly towards it, and even less visible at night. When Flamingos migrate, they do so at night, if tail winds are favourable and the sky is cloudless.

With regards to the parties involved that can make a difference in the mortalities of the Flamingo-chicks, it is important to note that Eskom and Transnet operate completely independently from each other and that all queries with regards to environmental issues should be made directly with Transnet and/or Mike Bolhuis: The Flamingo Project-management team: Linja Allen (072 011 2335) and Donovan Smith (082 561 4760).

Urgent action is required by everyone committed to our project, since there are still 120 Flamingo-youngsters left at the Kimberley-facility. We urgently need your suggestions and donations. Please make sure that when any payments are made, it is stated precisely what the donation is for. Running costs with regards to helpers and consumables (such as cleaning chemicals and medication) are expensive, and this excludes other costs such as the container rental needed for storage and for clinical purposes.

CYRIL! OUR FEEL GOOD-STORY!

"Cyril", our very own youngster from Roodeplaat, Gauteng, ringed and numbered as 0317, was released back at Kamfers Dam on 8 May 2019. "Cyril" travelled an astonishing 974km to Luderitz, Namibia.

According to Dr Dough Harebottle, two more tracker birds have dispersed from Kamfers Dam. One bird has flown in a NE-direction, towards a pan just north of Wesselbron, whilst the other bird has flown W, to the Platfontein Pans.
